- Cleaning: If ink gets on unintended surfaces, rubbing alcohol may help remove it, depending on the surface material. Test in an inconspicuous area first.

TROUBLESHOOTING

Problem	Possible Cause	Solution
Marker appears dry or ink flow is inconsistent.	Cap not replaced properly, prolonged exposure to air, or low ink level.	Ensure cap is always firmly replaced. Store markers tip-down. If still dry, the marker may be depleted.
Ink bleeds through paper.	Paper is too thin or porous.	Use thicker paper or cardstock. Place a protective sheet underneath your work.

Problem	Possible Cause	Solution
Ink does not adhere well to a surface.	Surface is oily, waxy, or extremely non-porous.	Clean the surface thoroughly before marking. Some surfaces may not be suitable for permanent markers.
