MAINTENANCE

Proper maintenance will extend the life of your tackle box and keep your fishing gear in optimal condition.

- Cleaning: After each use, especially if exposed to water or dirt, wipe the exterior and interior of the tackle box with a damp cloth. For stubborn dirt, a mild soap solution can be used, followed by rinsing with clean water.
- Drying: Ensure the tackle box and all metal components (hooks, weights, swivels) are thoroughly dried before closing and storing. Moisture can lead to rust and corrosion.
- Storage: Store the tackle box in a cool, dry place away from direct sunlight and extreme temperatures.
- Inspection: Periodically inspect the latch and hinges for any wear or damage.

TROUBLESHOOTING

Most issues with your tackle box can be resolved with simple checks.

Problem	Possible Cause	Solution
---------	----------------	----------

Problem	Possible Cause	Solution
Lid does not close securely.	Tackle or other items are obstructing the lid or latch mechanism.	Ensure all items are properly placed within the compartments and nothing is protruding. Check the latch for any debris.
Tackle components are rusting.	Moisture was left inside the box or on the components.	Always dry all tackle and the inside of the box thoroughly after use, especially if exposed to water. Consider using desiccant packets if storing in humid environments.
Tackle is tangled.	Items were not properly organized in compartments.	Utilize the individual compartments for different types of tackle (e.g., hooks in one, weights in another) to prevent tangling.
