Reclining and Footrest Operation

The RESPAWN 900 features independent controls for the back recline and the extendible footrest, allowing for customized comfort. The back reclines up to 135 degrees.

- To extend the footrest, locate the lever on the side of the chair (typically the right side) and pull it upwards. The footrest will extend forward.
- To recline the backrest, lean back while pulling the recline lever (often the same lever as the footrest or a separate one on the side). Release the lever at your desired recline angle.
- To return to an upright position, push your back forward while releasing the recline lever. Push the footrest back into its closed position.

- Inspection: Periodically check all bolts and connections to ensure they are tight. Re-tighten if necessary.
- Fabric Care: For bonded leather surfaces, avoid prolonged exposure to direct sunlight or extreme temperatures to prevent material degradation.

TROUBLESHOOTING

If you encounter any issues with your recliner, consider the following common solutions:

- Recliner not engaging/disengaging: Ensure the lever is fully pulled or released. Check for any obstructions in the reclining mechanism.
