GAMEPLAY

The game is played in two rounds. The goal is to collect matching sets of cards to earn points, while avoiding being hit by burritos, which causes you to lose points.

Taking a Turn

Players simultaneously draw cards from their Personal Draw Pile and discard cards face up into their Personal Discard Pile. The top 5 cards of your Personal Draw Pile are always visible to you. You may draw new cards from your Personal Draw Pile or from the Community Draw Piles.

Collecting Sets

Collect three matching cards to form a set. Normal card sets (e.g., three 'Logger Dogger' cards) are worth 1 point. Battle card sets (e.g., three 'Burrito Brawl' cards) are worth 2 points and also trigger a battle.

Battles

When a player collects a set of three Battle Cards, a battle ensues. There are three types of battles:

- Burrito Brawl: When you play three matching 'Burrito Brawl' cards, the two players to your left and right must grab a burrito and throw it at each other. The first player to get hit by a burrito loses a point.
- Burrito War: When you play three matching 'Burrito War' cards, all players must grab a burrito and throw it at each other. The last player to get hit by a burrito loses a point.
- Burrito Duel: When you play three matching 'Burrito Duel' cards, two players (including yourself) must stand back-to-back, walk three paces, and then turn and throw a burrito. The first player to get hit by a burrito loses a point.

Scoring

Points are accumulated by collecting sets of cards. Each Burrito Bruise token represents a lost point. The player with the most points at the end of two rounds wins the game. In case of a tie, the player with the Fear Me Badge wins.
