7. TROUBLESHOOTING

Retinol products can sometimes cause initial reactions as the skin adjusts. Here are some common observations and advice:

- Mild Irritation/Tingling: Some users may experience slight tingling or mild irritation during the first week of use. This is often a normal adjustment period. If irritation persists or worsens, reduce frequency of use (e.g., every other day) or discontinue use.
- Dryness/Peeling: Retinol can cause temporary dryness or mild peeling. Ensure adequate hydration by following with a moisturizer.
- Sun Sensitivity: Retinol increases sun sensitivity. Consistent daily use of broad-spectrum sunscreen (SPF 30 or higher) is crucial, even on cloudy days.
- Patch Test: If you have sensitive skin, perform a patch test on a small, inconspicuous area of skin before full application.
