Important Information & Precautions

Before using DEXIN, please read and understand the following important information to ensure safe and effective application:

- Trial Test: Always perform a trial test on a small, inconspicuous area before applying DEXIN to the entire surface.
- Marble Surfaces: DEXIN is NOT to be used on marble surfaces.

- Iron Surfaces: After cleaning iron surfaces, it is essential to rinse the iron thoroughly and apply a spray of oil to protect against rust.
- Sensitive Materials: Keep DEXIN away from trees, plants, and chrome-plated surfaces.
- Warranty: The manufacturer holds no responsibility or warranty for any leakage or damage after the customer receives the product.

Main Uses

DEXIN is formulated for effective removal of various contaminants from a wide range of surfaces:

- Removes cement, gypsum, rust, and dirt from floors, roofing, pools, bathrooms, kitchens, fountains, and other similar installations.
- Can be used for final cleaning of floors intended for painting or covering with waterproof coatings.
- Effectively cleans cement, concrete, rust, and dirt from concrete mixers and other cement mortar carrying equipment.
- The high-quality DEXIN formula is generally safe for most painted surfaces. Dirt, rust, cement, and gypsum can be removed from painted surfaces, provided the paint base is strong and stable.

How to Use

Follow these steps for optimal cleaning results:

1. Prepare Surface: Apply water to the surface that needs cleaning.
2. Prepare Solution: In a plastic bucket, mix DEXIN with clean water. The ratio depends on the severity of the cement and dirt:
    - For light dirt: 1 part DEXIN to 5 or 6 parts water.
    - For moderate dirt: 1 part DEXIN to 3 or 4 parts water.
    - For heavy dirt: 1 part DEXIN to 1 or 2 parts water.
3. Application: Apply the prepared solution using a medium-hard brush. For best results, apply the solution a few times.
4. Rinse: After cleaning, thoroughly wash the surface with clean water.
