OPERATING INSTRUCTIONS: CARRYING POSITIONS

The TALENBEEN Baby Carrier offers 6 versatile carrying positions to accommodate your baby's growth and your comfort. Always ensure your baby is in an ergonomic "M" position, with knees higher than their bottom, and their back in a natural C-curve.

1. Front Carry (Facing In) - Newborn to Toddler

Ideal for newborns (7 lbs+) and younger infants who need head and neck support. This position promotes bonding and allows you to monitor your baby closely.

- Ensure the head support is up for newborns.
- Baby's face should be visible and not pressed against your body.
- Adjust straps for a snug fit, keeping baby high enough to kiss.

2. Front Carry (Facing Out) - Older Infants (with head control)

For infants with strong head and neck control who enjoy observing their surroundings. Ensure baby is engaged and not overstimulated.

- Only use this position when your baby has full head and neck control.
- Ensure baby's legs are still in the ergonomic "M" position.

3. Back Carry - Toddlers

Suitable for older infants and toddlers who can sit unassisted and have good trunk control. This position offers a different perspective for the child and can be more comfortable for the parent with heavier children.

- Ensure baby is securely placed on your back and all straps are tightened.
- Practice this position with assistance until you are confident.

4. Hip Carry (with Hip Seat) - Infants & Toddlers

The hip seat can be used independently or with the carrier straps. It provides a comfortable perch for your baby, reducing strain on your arms and back, especially for quick ups and downs.

- Secure the hip seat firmly around your waist.
- Position your baby on the seat, ensuring their weight is centered.
- Always keep one hand on your baby when using the hip seat alone.
