OPERATING INSTRUCTIONS

Follow these steps for effective oil absorption:

1. Identify Oily Areas: Observe your face for areas with excess shine, typically the T-zone (forehead, nose, chin).
2. Gentle Patting: Take one sheet and gently press or pat it onto the oily areas of your skin. Do not rub the sheet across your face, as this can smudge makeup or irritate the skin.
3. Observe Absorption: The sheet will change color or become translucent as it absorbs oil, indicating its effectiveness.
4. Dispose: Discard the used sheet responsibly. Use a new sheet for other oily areas if necessary.

These sheets are designed to be makeup-friendly and will absorb oil without disturbing your cosmetics. They are suitable for all skin types, especially oily skin, and can be used by both men and women.

- Handling: Keep the sheets in their original packaging until ready for use to protect them from dust and contaminants.
- Disposal: Dispose of used sheets in a waste bin. Do not flush them down toilets.

TROUBLESHOOTING

While ZOROM'S Oil Absorbing Sheets are straightforward to use, here are some common observations and tips:

Issue	Possible Cause / Solution
-------	---------------------------

Issue	Possible Cause / Solution
Sheet does not absorb oil effectively.	Ensure the sheet is pressed gently but firmly against the skin. If the skin is excessively oily, a second sheet may be required. Verify the product has not expired (though not typically applicable for blotting sheets, extreme age or improper storage could affect performance).
Sheets are difficult to dispense.	Ensure you are pulling from the designated dispensing area. If the pack is new, the first few sheets might require a slightly firmer pull. Avoid tearing the sheets by pulling them straight out.
Skin feels dry after use.	The sheets are designed to absorb excess oil without overdrying. If your skin feels dry, you might be using too many sheets or pressing too hard. Consider using a moisturizer suitable for oily skin after blotting.
