MAINTENANCE AND CLEANING

Regular maintenance of your synthetic wick is crucial for optimal performance and longevity.

- Cleaning: To clean the wick, carefully remove it from the unit. Soak the wick in warm water for approximately 20-30 minutes. Gently rinse off any accumulated debris or mineral deposits under running water. Avoid using harsh chemicals or abrasive cleaners, as these can damage the synthetic material.
- Replacement Schedule: It is recommended to change the synthetic wick as needed under normal operating conditions. In environments with harsh air quality or high mineral content in the water, more frequent replacement may be necessary to maintain efficient humidification and air purification. A general guideline for replacement is every 3-6 months, depending on usage and water quality.

TROUBLESHOOTING

If you experience issues after replacing the wick, consider the following:

- Reduced Humidification: Ensure the wick is properly saturated with water. If the wick is dry or stiff, it may not be wicking water effectively. Clean or replace if necessary.
- Unusual Odors: A new wick may have a slight odor initially, which should dissipate quickly. Persistent odors may indicate the need for cleaning the wick or the humidifier unit itself.
- Improper Fit: Double-check that the wick is correctly seated in its compartment. An improper fit can hinder performance.
- Unit Not Functioning: Verify that the unit is properly plugged in and powered on. If the unit still does not function, consult the main Airvana AV600APH unit's instruction manual.
