

Understand Your Range

Offering Bolts at ranges up to 10,000 feet works well in tailoring your equipment to the needs of your job, but having different ranges on set might call into question the maximum range available. The distance of any 1:1 connection will be defined by the lowest range available in that set. This means that the transmitter always needs to be equivalent to the range of the farthest receiver in order to achieve the maximum distance.

