Timer Schedule

In the timer schedule window, you can schedule when each individual socket turns on or off.

With the countdown function you can turn a socket on for a specific time period. The schedule function allows you to set the exact time a socket turns on or off. The circulate function will keep turning the socket on and off in a programmed time sequence, e.g. 2 minutes on, 10 minutes off. The random function will turn the socket on/off at a random moment, close to the time you set. This will make the switching moments appear more random and naturally. With the inching function you can set the time the socket stays on after you turn it on. After this time, the socket will automatically turn off. So, e.g. every time you press the manual switch on the socket, it will stay on for a pre-set amount of time.

Settings

Here you can edit the settings. With the relay status you can decide if the socket remembers the last known status when it gets plugged in. With the Child Lock function, you can disable the manual switching function of the power button on the smart socket to prevent unwanted switching.
