Seizures, Blackouts and Eyestrain

A small percentage of people may be susceptible to blackouts or seizures (even if they have never had one before) when exposed to flashing lights or light patterns such as when playing games or watching video. If you have experienced seizures or blackouts or have a family history of such occurrences, you should consult a physician before playing video games or watching videos. Discontinue use of Sphero and your smart device controller and consult a physician if you experience headaches, blackouts, seizures, convulsion, eye or muscle twitching, loss of awareness, involuntary movement, or disorientation. To reduce risk of headaches, blackouts, seizures, and eyestrain, avoid prolonged use, hold your smart device controller some distance from your eyes, use Sphero in a well-lit room, and take frequent breaks.

· Repetitive Injury

When you perform repetitive activities such as playing games on your smart device controller, you may experience occasional discomfort in your hands, arms, shoulders, neck, or other parts of your body. Avoid excessive play. It is recommended that parents monitor their children for appropriate play. Take frequent breaks and if you have discomfort during or after such use, stop use and see a physician.

WARNING: Choking Hazards

Sphero has small parts inside its shell, which may present a choking hazard to small children and pets. Keep Sphero and its accessories away from small children.

Keeping Sphero Within Acceptable Temperatures

Operate and store Sphero in a place where the temperature is between 0° and 40° C (32° to 104° F). Low or high-temperature conditions might temporarily shorten battery life or cause Sphero to temporarily stop working properly. Avoid dramatic changes in temperature or humidity when using Sphero, as condensation may form on or within Sphero. Don't leave Sphero in your car, because temperatures in parked cars can exceed this range. When you're using Sphero or charging the battery, it is normal for Sphero to get warm. The exterior of Sphero functions as a cooling surface that transfers heat from inside the unit to the cooler air outside.
